SOCIETY FOR CONSTITUTIONAL INFORMATION.

THE design of this Society is to diffuse throughout the kingdom, as universally as possible, a knowledge of the great principles of Constitutional Freedom, particularly such as respect the election and duration of the representative body. With this view Constitutional Tracts, intended for the extension of this knowledge, and to communicate it to persons of all ranks, are printed and distributed GRATIS, at the expence of the Society. Essays, and extracts from various authors, calculated to promote the same design, are also published under the direction of the Society, in several of the News-papers: and it is the wish of the Society to extend this knowledge throughout every part of the united kingdoms, and to convince men of all ranks, that it is their interest, as well as their duty, to support a free constitution, and to maintain and assert those common rights, which are essential to the dignity, and to the happiness of human nature.

To procure short parliaments, and a more equal representation of the people, are the primary objects of the attention of this Society, and they wish to disseminate that knowledge among their
A Countrymen,

[ii]

Countrymen, which may lead them to a general sense of the importance of these objects, and which may induce them to contend for their rights, as men, and as citizens, with ardour and with firmness.

The communication of sound political knowledge to the people at large must be of great national advantage; as nothing but ignorance of their natural rights, or inattention to the consequence of those rights to their interest and happiness, can induce the majority of the inhabitants of any country to submit to any species of civil tyranny. Public Freedom is the source of national dignity, and of national felicity; and it is the duty of every friend to virtue and mankind to exert himself in the promotion of it.

By the laws of the Constitutional Society it is unlimited in its numbers. All questions in the Society are determined by ballot; and all ballots are taken by the President, or presiding Member.

Gentlemen desirous of becoming Members are to be admitted by ballot, and to subscribe from One to Five Guineas per Annum; and those who wish to contribute otherwise to the support of this Institution, will please to remit their contributions for this purpose to Edward Bridgen, Esq. in Pater-noster Row, London; signifying, that what they order is to be paid into the Hands of the Treasurer of the Society for Constitutional Information.
